1. Purpose

Employees must keep personal data accurate so payroll, tax, benefits, and emergency response work correctly. This policy states what you may change yourself, what HR must change, and privacy rules.

2. Data you must keep current

Data | Why it matters | Who updates

Residential address | Tax, mail, emergency | Employee self-service (with effective date)

Personal mobile / email | Reachability | Employee

Emergency contact | Crisis response | Employee

Bank account for salary | Payroll | Employee self-service or HR if locked

Marital status / dependents | Benefits eligibility | Employee with evidence where required

Legal name / ID / passport | Legal / immigration | HR only with supporting documents

Job, grade, manager, pay | Employment terms | HR / manager workflow only

3. Self-service vs HR ticket

Use self-service for standard contact and address changes.

Open an HR ticket for:

- Legal name change (deed poll / marriage cert)
- HKID / passport / visa updates
- Correction of historical employment data
- Suspected identity theft or wrong person data
- Any change you cannot save (field locked)

4. Privacy and acceptable use

1. Do not share colleagues' personal data in Slack/Teams/email beyond need-to-know.
2. Do not upload other people's ID documents into the HR assistant chat.
3. AI tools may explain how to update fields; they must not store or repeat full bank account numbers or HKID in answers.
4. Screenshots for support: mask account numbers except last 4 digits.
5. Company may process employee data under the Personal Data (Privacy) Ordinance and the employee privacy notice.

5. Effective dating

Most biographic changes in the employee profile are effective-dated. Choose the date the change becomes true (e.g. move-in date). Back-dating beyond policy limits may require HR.

6. Verification

HR may request documents for high-impact changes (name, bank, dependents). Failure to provide documents can delay payroll or benefits.

7. What the assistant may say

- Explain which fields are self-service vs HR-only.
- Link to the step-by-step update guide.
- Remind users not to paste full sensitive IDs into chat.
- Must not change profile data or confirm payroll bank updates succeeded without the employee checking the system.
